A SONG OF EASTER.

BY CELIA THAXTER.

Sing, children, sing!
And the lily censers swing;
Sing that life and joy are waking and that Death no more is king.
Sing the happy, happy tumult of the slowly
brightening Spring;
Sing, little children, sing!

Sing, children, sing!
Winter wild has taken wing.
Fill the air with the sweet tidings till the frosty echoes ring!
Along the eaves the icicles no longer glittering cling;
And the crocus in the garden lifts its bright
face to the sun,
And in the meadows softly the brooks begin to run;
And the golden catkins swing
In the warm airs of the Spring;
Sing, little children, sing!

Sing, children, sing!
The lilies white you bring
In the joyous Easter morning for hope are blossoming;
And as the earth her shroud of snow from off
her breast doth fling,
So may we find release at last from sorrow and from pain.
So may we find our childhood's calm, delicious dawn again.
Sweet are your eyes, O little ones, that look with smiling grace,
Without a shade of doubt or fear into the Future's face!
Sing, sing in happy chorus, with joyful voices tell
That death is life, and God is good, and all things shall be well;
That bitter days shall cease
In warmth and light and peace,—
That Winter yields to Spring.—
Sing, little children, sing!

Select Story.

THE BACHELOR'S SURPRISE.

A chill December evening with the rain and snow forming a disagreeable sort of conglomeration on the sidewalks, the gas lamps at the corner flickering sullenly through the mist, and the wind taking one viciously as one came around the corner. Not a pleasant evening to assume possession of a new home; but necessity knows no law, and Mr. Barkdale put his night-key into the red brick house in the middle of the block, sincerely hoping that his new landlady would have common sense to light a fire in the grate.

'Is it you, sir?' Mrs. Hinman quoth, beamingly. 'There's a good fire, and it's all right.'

'All right, eh?' said the bachelor, feeling the blue tip of his frostred nose to see whether it had escaped being frozen off entirely. 'Well, I am glad to hear that. Have the trunks come?'

'Oh, yes, sir; and the other things?'

'What other things?' demanded Mr. Barkdale.

But Mrs. Hinman pursed her lips up. 'I wasn't to tell, sir, please.'

'Rather an eccentric old lady,' thought Mr. Barkdale, pushing past her to the third story front room, which he had solemnly engaged the day before.

It had been rather a dark and dingy little den by the light of the moon, but now, softened by the coral shine of a well filled grate, it wore quite another and a brighter aspect.

'Velvet paper on the walls, gilt paneling, red carpet, and Sleepy Hollow chair,' thought Mr. Barkdale, glancing around. 'Not so uncomfortable, after all. When I get my things unpacked it will seem quite homelike.'

He set down his valise in the corner, deliberately opened it, took out a pair of slippers and invested his tired feet therein. Next he laid off his overcoat.

'Now for a cigar,' thought he.

But the brown-layered weed was yet in his hand when there was a bustle, and a flutter, and a whisper, and a merry noise on the landing outside, and the door flew open, as if by magic, to admit half a dozen blooming, laughing girls.

Mr. Barkdale dropped his cigar and retreated a step or two.

'Don't be alarmed,' said the tallest and the prettiest of the bevy; it's only a surprise.'

'A very agreeable one, I'm sure,' said our friend, recovering in some degree his presence of mind.

'There's no mistake, I hope,' said a yellow tressed blonde. 'Your name is not Greenfield?'

'No mistake at all, I assure you,' said Mr. Barkdale. 'Of course it is not Greenfield. Sit down, ladies.'

And he pushed forward the Sleepy Hollow chair, a camp-stool and two rheumatic reception-chairs, which were all the accommodations presented by his apartment.

But instead of accepting his courtesy the girls all fluttered out again, giggling, and in a second, before he could realize his strange condition of affairs, they were back again, bearing benches and a table cloth, dishes, boquets, a pyramid of macaronies, piled-up plates of sandwiches, of frosted cake, and a mysterious something like unto an ice-cream freezer.

The golden-tressed girl clapped her hands.

'You needn't think we are doing this for you, sir,' she said.

'Oh,' said Mr. Barkdale, bashfully, 'I—I hadn't any such impression.'

'It's all a surprise designed for Kate's cousin.'

'Is it?' said Mr. Barkdale, more in the dark than ever.

'And how do you suppose we found it all out?' demanded the tall girl with the black eyes and scarlet feathers in her hat.

'I haven't the least idea.'

'We found your letter to Kate, and we girls read it, and we resolved to take both you and her by surprise. She is to be here in half an hour. Barbara—that is Barbara Morris in the blue merino dress,' with a turn of her long lashes toward the golden-haired girl—'pretends that she has moved here, and Kate is to come and spend the evening with Barbara. Won't it be a good joke?'

'Stupendous!' said our hero, gradually beginning to comprehend the fact that he was mistaken for some one else.

'What, will Kate say when she sees you here?' ejaculated another maid merrily.

'Ah! What, indeed?' said Mr. Barkdale wondering in what words he could best explain matters.

'Of course we shall look the other way while you are kissing and hugging her,' said Miss Barbara demurely.

'Very considerate of you, I am sure,' observed Mr. Barkdale.

'She's the sweetest girl in New York,' exclaimed the tall damsel, enthusiastically. 'I am one of her dearest friends. We work our sewing-machines side by side at Madame Grillard's. Hasn't she ever written to you about Alice Moore?'

'I—I don't just at this moment recall that she ever has.'

'Oh, well, it doesn't matter,' said Alice. 'Just you sit down and be a good boy, while we fix the tables. Aren't those roses beautiful?' My goodness gracious, how astonished Kate will be.'

'She can't be more so than I am,' said Mr. Barkdale, sinking into the Sleepy Hollow chair, and passing his handkerchief vaguely across his forehead. 'Well, it's a mere matter of fate; I can't see how I am to explain myself; yet, perhaps I ought to explain—''

'Hush-sh-sh,' cried the six pretty girls, all in a hissing chorus; "Kate's coming; Bessie has brought her. 'Hush-sh-sh! Don't say a word, Mr. Greenfield.' The golden-haired girl's hand was clapped promptly over his mouth. Alice Moore grasped his arm spasmodically, and the other four danced a sort of bewitching little feminine war-dance about him, while a seventh girl entered—a pretty, Madonna-faced little creature like a dove.

'Come and kiss him, Kate,' cried all the others. 'Now, don't be ridiculous, for we shan't take any notice. Here he is!'

'Kiss who?' cried Kate, standing still and staring all around. Girls, what on earth do you mean?'

'You provoking thing!' said Barbara, stamping her little foot. 'Do you suppose we are all fools? Why, of course we know all about him! It's Mr. Greenfield—your cousin, Kate—the young M. D.'

Kate looked around in bewilderment.

Where's

'Why, here!'

'Nothing of the sort!' said Miss Kate, demurely.

Our hero stood up, feeling himself growing uncomfortably warm and red.

'Ladies,' he said, 'there's some mistake here. I said, at the outset that may name was not Greenfield.'

'There!' cried the girls all once.

'There!' echoed Kate defiantly.

'Didn't we tell you?' cried the girls.

'Didn't I tell you?' retorted Kate. 'Be kind enough to let us know what your name is sir.'

'Cephas Barkdale!' said the wretched victim of a misunderstanding.

'But,' said Miss Moore' 'you said it was not Greenfield.'

'Of course I did!' said the puzzled bachelor. 'It isn't Greenfield, and it never will be unless I have it changed by an act of legislature.'

'Oh-h!' cried the girls. 'Dear, dear, to be sure! And we thought you were Kate's lover—and his name is N-o-double-t—Nott Greenfield.'

'Do hold your tongues, you ridiculous things!' said Kate, half vexed, half laughing, 'what must Mr. Barkdale think of us?'

'I think you are very nice,' said Mr. Barkdale, gallantly.

Miss Barbara in the meantime had taken a slip of paper out of her pocet.

She uttered a hysterical shriek.

'It's all my fault, she exclaimed It was No. 39 instead of No. 36—and the tail of the horrid figures turned the wrong end up—that's all. And the cake, and the flowers, and everything.'

'Stop, 'ladies, if you please,' said Mr. Barkdale, courteously. 'Because the surprise has come to the wrong place is no reason why the right person should not enjoy it. Allow me to give up this room to your use this evening. I will just step across the street and send Mr. Nott Greenfield over.

'But you must return with him,' said the girls.

And Mr. Barkdale was not allowed to depart until he had promised.

Mr. Nott Greenfield—a good looking medical student—who had "sky parlor" directly opposite—came promptly on mention of the name of Kate Kellford, and did the polite thing in introducing Mr. Barkdale; and Mr. Barkdale ate of the sandwiches, and enjoyed the cake and cream, and coaxed Miss Barbara to pin a pink rosebud in the button hole of his coat, and enjoyed himself prodigiously.

I'd like to be surprised like this every night in the year.

'Oh, you greedy creature,' said Miss Barbara.

'But there was one time I seriously meditated throwing myself out of the window,' said he, 'when you told me I was to kiss Kate.'

'But the awkwardness of the thing!'

'I dare say you never kissed a pretty girl,' pouted the blonde.

'I never did,' said the bachelor, growing bold, 'but I will now, if you say so.'

'But I don't say so,' said Barbara, coloring and laughing. 'Behave yourself, sir.'

Mr. Barkdale went home with the fair Barbara, and they grew to be very great friends, and—where's the use trying to conceal how it all ended? They were married at the years end, with all the surprisers for bridesmaids, Kate Kellford included. Mr. Nott Greenfield proposes to follow the example as soon as he gets his diploma.

A HIT AND A MISS.—A young lady was sitting with a gallant captain in a charmingly decorated recess. On her knee was a diminutive niece, placed there pour es convenances. In the adjoining room, with the door open, were the rest of the company. Says the little niece, in a jealous and very audible voice, 'Auntie, kiss me, too.' Any one can imagine what had just happened, 'You should say twice, Ethel dear, two is not grammar,' was the immediate rejoinder. Clever girl, that.

THE MAPLE SUGAR SEASON.

The maple sugar days have come, the sweetest of the year, when little cakes, and big ones, too, are sold so awfully dear. We see the sugar in big brown cakes in some windows and in straw colored cakes in other windows, and the proprietors of the first assure us that the deep brown color is a proof of its genuineness, and the proprietors of the second say they wouldn't keep the brown article on any consideration. The sign in the shop windows raises suspicion: "Genuine maple sugar." This naturally suggests that some other place keeps maple sugar that is not genuine. 'Maple sugar warranted pure.' Then there must be qualities not strictly pure. Happily, however, none of this stuff is kept in Detroit as can easily be proven by the signs in the windows. Every storekeeper in the city will at once acknowledge that he keeps only the pure article. Many simple persons think, misled by the name, perhaps, that maple sugar is made from maple trees in some manner or other, but whether the trees are grown up or not they are not exactly certain. In olden times it must be admitted that maple sugar did have its origin in maple sap, but modern science has made gigantic strides in advance of these crude old-fashioned ways of our ancestors. At this time of the year a long time ago a sort of V was cut on the maples about four feet from the ground. An upward blow from an ax under the V cut a gash in which was inserted the wooden spout, and then into the wooden troughs, or perhaps buckets, steadily dripped the sweet life-blood of the maple. Then the boy came along with the sled, generally drawn by oxen, who made frantic endeavors to drink the sap as they passed the brimming troughs. On the sled was a barrel, which when filled, was taken to the camp where seethed the steaming caldrons over the fierce fire. Here the barrel was emptied into the large tank which supplied the big open iron kettles suspended over the fire. Then came the sugar-off. And with it came the neighboring young men and maidens to assist in eating the rapidly forming sugar. The sugar-off was always a big time. There was a great deal of sweet talk indulged in, of course. If there was still some snow left it was very useful. The thick boiled sugar was ladled out and poured not into the cool snow. The result was a waxy substance that had a sort of remote relationship to the taffy they give us nowadays. It was sweeter than a sister and stuck closer than a brother when it got a good reliable hold in a person's mouth. These were the good old times when maple sugar sold for five cents a pound, before we got into the improved method of manufacturing it from brown West India sugar and Lake Huron sand. However, we still respect the maple sugar season, and don't dust off the cakes and bring them to the light of day except in early spring, when genuine maple sugar is made.—Detroit Free Press.

HOUSEHOLD CLEANLINESS 120 YEARS AGO.

It is the fashion to assume that cleanliness in its thoroughgoing, all-pervading acceptation, was the quality for which households of the old stamp were distinguished. Where the mistress and her daughters held strict supervision that would be so; but we have now and then an insight into things as they were, where this eye was wanting which tells another tale. A certain Will Verral's experiences are so much to the point that we will give them, as chancing upon them in our reading, though we have seen them quoted not very long since elsewhere. Will was inn-keeper and man cook, of Lewes, in Sussex, employed by the gentlemen of the neighborhood to cook their state dinners for them. He published a cookery book—the date of 1759—and wrote a preface to it which shows him master of a picturesque style: 'I have been sent for many and many a time to get dinners for many of the families hereabouts. The salute generally is, 'Will' (for that is my name), 'I want you to dress me a dinner to-day,' 'With all my heart, sir,' says I; 'how many will your company be?' 'Why, about ten or twelve, or thereabouts.' 'And what would you please to have me get, sir, for ye?' 'Oh,' says the gentleman, 'I shall leave that entirely to you, etc. My next sep was to go and offer a great many compliments to Mrs. Cook about getting the dinner. The girl, I'll say that for her, returned the compliment very prettily by saying, 'Sir, whatever my master or you shall order me to do shall be done as far and as well as I am able.' But Nanny (for that I found to be her name) soon got into such an air as often happens upon such occasions. 'Pray Nanny,' says I, 'where do you place your stewpans and other things you make use of in the cooking way?' 'La, sir, says she, that is all we have,' (pointing to one poor solitary stewpan, as one might call it, but no more fit for the use than a wooden hand-dish). 'Umph!' says I to myself, how's this to be? A surgeon may as well attempt to make an incision with a pair of shears, or open a vein with an oyster knife, as for me to pretend to get this dinner without proper tools to do it.' At length, wanting a seive, I begged of Nanny to give me one; and so she did in a moment—but such a one! I put my fingers to it and found it gravelly. 'Nanny,' says I, 'this won't do; it is sandy.' She looked at it, and angry enough she was. 'Rot our Sue,' says she, 'she's always taking my seive to sand her nasty, dirty stairs.' But, however, to be a little cleanly, Nanny gave it a thump on the table, much about the part of it where the meat is generally laid, and whips it into the boiler, where I suppose the pork and cabbage were boiling for the family, gives it a sort of a rinse, and gave it to me again with about as much of the pork fat about it as would poison the whole dinner; so I said no more, but could not use it, and made use of a napkin that I slyly made friends with her fellow servants for, at which she leered round and set off; but I heard her say, as she flirted her tail into the scullery, 'Hang these men cooks, they are so confounded nice! I'll be whipped, says she, 'if there was more sand in the seive than would lay upon a sixpence!'—Blackwood's Magazine.

Much of the meat sold in London as prime English beef is American. American beef sent over in refrigerators is just as good as English—many think it better. At one of the first clubs in London recently there were served an English and an American sirloin of beef, and no one could tell the difference. Hungarian and Bohemian beef, too, is coming into the London market at 12 cents a pound, and much game, especially pheasants, from Bohemia.

ANCIENT PEDESTRIANISM.

Among the most famous of walking matches are those recorded in military history, where to the obstacles of heavy burdens and difficult grounds were added those of time and space. The march of the heavily armed Spartans in 409 B. C., from Lacedæmon to Marathon, covering 150 miles of almost roadless country in three days, would have earned high commendation in an age of sporting papers. The Consul Nero's march to the Metaurus, to surprise the Carthiginians (201 B. C.) lasted two days and a night with the slightest possible intermission, the soldiers taking food from the hands of the country people, and eating it as they went. Hannibal's retreat from Zama upon Carthage, brought him to Andrumentum, sixty-three miles distant, between dawn and night-fall, the pursuing Romans accomplishing the same distance in even less time. Cæsar's Tenth Legion achieved a parallel feat in Gaul, while in heavy marching order. The Bernese Swiss, when summoned to aid those of Soleure in repelling an invasion, are said to have answered the call so promptly that the newly baked loaves which they carried with them were barely cold on arrival. Frederick the Great, on the hottest day of the terrible summer of 1760, had a kind of race with Marshal Daun for the occupation of an important post, both armies making such speed that 200 Prussians and 300 Austrians dropped dead on the line of march from sheer exhaustion. Frederick's younger brother, Henry, during the same war, marched for fifty hours, with only three intervening halts. Napoleon's 'Old Guard' repeatedly made sixty miles in a day during the great campaign of 1813; and one of the Russian regiments in Central Asia is stated on good authority, to have accomplished seventy-eight. The similar exploits achieved during the Indian mutiny, of 1857, and the American civil war of 1861–5 are too well known to need repetition.

SCOTCH GENTLEWOMEN IN DIFFICULTIES.

Among the trades most suitable for women may be mentioned every form of millinery and dress making, all the lighter work of linen drapers' shops, the lighter work of book sellers' and print shops, certain branches of jewelers' work, house decorators' and china merchants' business. Colleges for nurses, schools of cookery and schools of art needlework afford resources for women which did not exist fifty years ago. But many more occupations, which used to be considered the peculiar property of women, have somehow slipped out of their hands and passed into those of men who could dig and lift heavy burdens, cross the seas and be the pioneers of a new civilization. Not only worsted and fancy work shops, but what are called furnishing shops, glove shops, toy shops, bun houses for the sale of buns, cakes, and smaller confectionery, and the retail trade in tea, were formerly regarded to a large extent as belonging to the province of women—not unfrequently of poor gentlewoman. Some of the readers of these observations may recall old stories of Scotch ladies of rank—earl's daughters—who, after the failures of the Darien expedition and the Jacobite rebellion, stoutly maintained themselves and their children by making and selling thread and by keeping shops of small wares. Other readers, who are admirers of Mrs. Gaskell's writings, will surely think of her gentle Miss Matty, the late rector's elderly daughter, who, on the failure of a bank and its disastrous consequences, set herself to preserve her meek, modest independence by selling tea in Cranford; and, as a parting word the present writer begs to explain that she does not intend by any means to imply that trade asks no distinct qualification and no particular training, only that the qualifications are less rare, the training is not so arduous, and may be acquired later in life—above all the remuneration to industry and prudence is far more certain. If the younger of the good gentlewomen will but revive the good precedent, if they will take heart and cast small prejudices to the winds, their latter end may, indeed be better than their beginning.—Good Words.

SHAKESPEARE'S EARLY MARRIED LIFE

The Hathaways had lived in Shottery for forty years prior to Shakespeare's marriage. The poet, then wholly undistinguished, had just turned eighteen, while his bride was nearly twenty-six, and it is often said now that she did very wrong to wed this boy-lover. They were married in November, 1582, and their first child, Susanna, came in the following May. Anne Hathaway must have been a wonderful fascinating woman, or Shakspeare would not have loved her; and she must have loved him dearly—as what woman, indeed, could help it?—or she would not have yielded to his passion. There is direct testimony to the beauty of her person; and in the light afforded by his writings it requires no extraordinary penetration to conjecture that his brilliant mind, sparkling humor, tender fancy, and impetuous spirit must have made him in his youth the very paragon of enchanters. It is not known where they lived during the first years after their marriage. Perhaps in this cottage at Shottery. Perhaps with Hamnet and Judith Sadler, for whom their twins, born in 1585, were named Hamnet and Judith. Her father's house assuredly would have been chosen for Anne's refuge, when presently, in 1586, Shakspeare was obliged to leave his wife and children, and go away to London to seek his fortune. He did not buy New Place till 1597, but it is known that in the mean time he came to his native country once every year. It was in Stratford that his son Hamnet died, in 1596. Anna and her children probably had never left the town. They show her bedstead and other bits of her furniture, together with certain homespun sheets of everlasting linen, that are kept as heirlooms to this day, in the garret of the Shottery cottage. Here is the room that must often have welcomed the poet when he came home from his labors in the great city. It is a very homely and humble place, but the sight makes the heart thrill with a strange and incommunicable awe. You can not wish to speak when you are standing there. You are scarcely conscious of the low rustling of the leaves outside, and the far-off sleepy murmuring of the brook, or the faint fragrance of woodbine and the maiden's-blush that is wafted in at the open casement, and that swathes in nature's incense a memory sweeter than itself. —William Winter, in Harper's Magazine for May.

"See here, Mister," said a lad of seven summers, who was driven up a tree by a dog, 'if you don't take that dog away I'll eat up all your apples!"

BIJAH A DODO.

The other day, when a man dropped in on Bijah and wiped the tears from his eyes, and said that his family was in rags, hungry and sick, the old gentleman's heart swelled up and he replied:

'Go down to my farm and help yourself—take half the crops—take all of them.'

'Its too good—too good!' sighed the weeping man.

'No, it ain't continued Bijah.' 'I put in them crops on purpose for the poor of Detroit, and you hire a wagon and go down there and draw off enough to last your family all winter.'

The citizen broke down and sobbed like a child, and Bijah blew his nose with great violence and said to himself:

'What's the use of being bald-headed, and big-footed if you can't put a pry under a fellow human being in distress?'

The man was gone about an hour, and he returned without any tears in his eyes. On the contrary, his face was red, his eyes flashed, and he stood before Bijah and yelled:

'I'm a good mind to rub your ears agin yer shoulders!'

'Great cider-mills! but what has occurred now?' gasped the old man.

'You sent me down to the farm!'

'I did, and told you to draw off all the crops'

'And I've drawed 'em and here they are.'

The man unrolled a paper and exhibited a shriveled old beet, two cabbage leaves, three or four faded string beans, and a potato about the size of a buck shot.

'You told me to hire a wagon and draw 'em off!' he went on, throwing the old beet on the floor. 'I hired one, and this is the load! you have cost me fifty cents, and I'm a good mind to lick you! you are an old chimpanzee under the fence—an old garter snake in a frog pond—a hyena in a——!'

At this point he got so mad that he hit Bijah on the chin with the beet and rushed out doors. The old man stood like one in a trance, and it was fully three minutes before he could gasp out:

'If gratitude exists in the human heart then I'm willing to be called a dodo!'

CHARLES LAMB'S WARNING TO YOUNG MEN.

Beware of evil habits. Easily learned, they are the most difficult to overcome. At first, slender as 'the spider's most attenuated thread,' they thicken round us into cords by which are bound into most utter helplessness. No slavery for one moment can be compared to that of the man who is the servant of his lusts and victim of pernicious habits. Withstand beginnings, therefore, * * * * * Hear the confession of one of the finest of the English essayests, who unhappily knew from experience only too well the degradation which he cries to you out of his depths: 'The waters have gone over me. But out of the black depths, could I be heard, I would cry out to all those who have set a foot in the perilous flood. Could the youth to whom the flavor of his first wine is delicious as the opening scenes of life, or the entering upon some newly discovered paradise, look into my desolation, and be made to understand what a dreary thing it is when a man shall feel himself going down a precipice with open eyes and a passive will; to see his destruction and have no power to stop it, and yet to feel it all the way emanating from himself; to perceive all goodness emptied out of him, and yet not to be able to fix a time when it was otherwise; to bear out the piteous spectacle of his own self-ruin; could he see my feverish eye, feverish with last night's drinking, and feverishly looking for this night's repetition of the folly; could he feel the body of death out of which I cry daily with feebler and feebler outcry to be delivered, it were enough to make him dash the sparkling beverage to the earth in all the pride of its mantling temptation.'

Alas! poor Lamb may thy words to-day prove words of power to every one of us!

"DARE YOU DO IT?"

Derrick Dodd, tells the following good story:

It was a sad looking tramp, with a pained expression of face, that entered a Sutter street bar-room the other day holding in his hand a small, battered red canister. 'Look at this,' he said sorrowfully. 'I went into a gun-shop and begged for something to eat, and the mean man handed me this can of powder. He said I could go shooting—a starving man go shooting! Just think of it.'

'Well, mizzle!' retorted the bar-keeper, who had just set up four fancy drinks for a row of customers.

'I pledge you my word,' said the vagrant, holding the can within an inch of the open stove, 'I'm so miserable I've almost a mind to blow myself up.'

'Dare you to do it,' said one of the bystanders, winking at the crowd.

The wretched party gave a sad, lingering look at the poured-out liquor, as that he might ne'er behold again, and tossed in the can.

The yell that the whole crowd gave as they started for the other side of the street was heard on Telegraph Hill. When they filed in about ten minutes after the empty can did not explode, there were four empty glasses on the counter, the lunch table was an empty mockery, and the till looked like a savings bank on the day after a really large deposit.—San Francisco Post.

A GOOD STORY.—I am inclined to think the following an excellent story. What do you say?

'Mrs Muriel took great intererest in parish affairs. Last year she promised to assist in decorating the parish church. One illuminated text she thought would look well over the chancel screen, and she requested her husband to bring it from town. As might have been expected he forgot the text, and wired to his wife for particulars. To the surprise of all the telegraph clerks this message came flashing over the wires: 'Unto us a child is born, nine feet long by two feet broad.''

"REVOLUTION !"

In the absence of anything better, the Republican leaders have started this war cry because of the proposed Democratic legislation in Congress, and a partisan press obediently re-echoes the sentiment. Revolutions may be peaceable or forcible. The former is the Democratic method, and the latter that adopted by our opponents. The people at the polls reinstated the Democratic party to correct certain abuses inaugurated by the Republicans. Chief among them are the Supervisors' Law, the Jurors' Test Oath Law, and that in relation to the use of Federal bayonets at elections. We have already referred to the first two subjects, and now desire to call especial attention to the last. Even England under the reign of so arbitrary a monarch as George II, in reference to the use of troops at the polls, had the following law passed by Parliament, which was reenacted under Queen Victoria:

> "Sec. 2. And be it enacted, That on every day appointed for the nomination or for the election or for taking the poll for the election of a member or members to serve in the Common House of Parliament no soldier within two miles of any city, borough, town, or place where such nomination or election shall be declared or poll taken shall be allowed to go out of the barrack or quarters in which he is stationed, unless for the purpose of mounting or relieving guard, or for giving his vote at such election; and that every soldier allowed to go out for any such purpose within the limits aforesaid shall return to his barrack or quarters with all convenient speed as soon as his guard shall have been relieved or vote tendered."

The third section of the British law declares that whenever such an election is appointed, notice of it shall, with all convenient speed, be sent to the War Office, and thence in writing, "to the general officer commanding in each district of Great Britain, who shall thereupon give the necessary orders for enforcing the execution of this act in all places under his command."

The interference of the military with the functions of the civil power in the Colonies led to the Revolution, and was sternly denounced in the Declaration of Independence. It was the war cry of the Republican party against Buchanan's administration of affairs in "Bleeding Kansas," The Constitution of Pennsylvania says: "Elections shall be free and equal; and no power, civil or military shall at any time interfere to prevent the free exercise of the right of suffrage. The law itself was revolutionary, but the power it gives was also exercised in war times, and notably when the "sainted Lincoln" sent soldiers to various polls in this County—to overawe voters and re-elect himself. Even Gen. Geary when Governor of this State, warned the President not to send Federal troops to Philadelphia to enforce the election laws, as was proposed, and threatened to oppose them by force, asserting in a message to the Legislature that it was an interference with State Rights.

Now what does the Army Bill propose?

This is its language:

> "That section 2,002 of the Revised Statutes be amended so as to read as follows: 'No military or naval officer, or other persons engaged in the civil, military, or naval service of the United States shall order, bring, keep, or have under his authority or control any troops or armed men at the place where any general or special election is held in any State, unless it be necessary to repel the armed enemies of the United States.'
> "And that section 5,528 of the Revised Statutes be amended so as to read as follows:
> "Every officer of the army or navy, or other person in the civil, military, or naval service of the United States, who orders, brings, keeps, or has under his authority or control any troops or armed men at any place where a general or special election is held in any State, unless such force be necessary to repel armed enemies of the United States, shall be fined not more than five thousand dollars, and suffer imprisonment at hard labor not less than three months nor more than five years."

How do the existing statutes differ from the proposed statutes? In the sole particular that the two former now contain, after the words "to repeal armed enemies of the United States," the additional exception, "or to keep the peace at the polls."

The Republican argument is two-fold: First, that the existing law "is right." We have already answered that point, but would add that if it is just why did the Republicans agree to help repeal it as a separate measure?

Second. It is objected that it should not be a rider to an appropriation bill. We answer that it became a law by the Republicans fastening it to an army appropriation bill in 1867. In that year the Republicans in Congress, with President Hayes and Gen. Garfield as members and acting with the majority, forced into the army appropriation bill part of the very legislation the Democrats now propose, they held the bill until the last days of the session to coerce President Johnson to sign the bill. Was it revolutionary then on the part of Hayes and Garfield?

In 1872 the Supervisor Law was in the same manner forced into the civil appropriation bill, the Republicans voting under the party lash wielded by Garfield. What was consistent for Hayes and Garfield should not be deemed inconsistent for Democrats by such men.

Congress represents the people, and should not be dictated to by a sore minority, caught in their own trap.

LET THE PEOPLE REJOICE.

The "Riot Bill" has been defeated by the close vote of 101 to 98. On the motion to reconsider, Vanderslice voted to reconsider, and Knittle against it. It is now in order to kill the iniquitous "Border Raid Bill," and then the Legislature might as well adjourn.

The Democrats of Indianapolis held a city convention the other day and gathered in a whole lot of colored men. Not only were colored men members of the convention, but one occupied the position of vice president and another was nominated for City Marshal. Recently the Democrats of Rhode Island ran a colored man for the Legislature, and at Reading another was candidate for constable on the Democratic ticket. This amounts to a revolution.

—Pleuro-Pneumonia in Luzerne County.—Considerable alarm exists among the cattle dealers about Wilkesbarre owing to the prevalence of pleuro-pneumonia. One veterinary surgeon of Wilkesbarre has charge of eight cases. Several cases have resulted fatally.

THE CZAR SHOT AT.

The old saying that "uneasy is the head that wears a crown," most frequently occurs to rulers. The following dispatch from St. Petersburg, dated Monday last shows the narrow escape of the Czar:

"While the Czar was taking his usual morning walk, early to-day, near the palace, four shots from a revolver were fired at him. The Czar was unhurt. The man who fired the shots was arrested by the crowd which the firing attracted The city is now being decorated in token of thankfulness for the Czar's escape.

General Richard Taylor, son of Old Zack, died in New York on Saturday. He was widely known in European as well as American capitals, not only as an accomplished soldier who bore high rank in the southern army during the late rebellion, but as a gentleman of unusual scholarly attainments, rare social qualities and cosmopolitan tastes. He was born in New Orleans in 1826. Advices from Paris announce the death of Jean Hippolyte Cartier, called Villemessant, who, if not the founder of la Figaro, certainly was the editor who has given to that journal a world-wide fame.

SOUND DOCTRINE.

The following sensible remarks we clip from the Towanda Journal, an independent paper with republican tendencies:

The most formidable movement in the national field of politics to day is that to make Gen. Grant President for a third term. That it will be successful we have little expectation, but that it is important enough to demand the serious attention and vigorous opposition of every citizen who has the welfare of this country at heart is only too apparent. Enlisted in its support are many of the most potential elements in our political life. First, the movement is organized and led by a closely-united band of astute political manipulators, such as no other candidate, no other interest, can possibly command,—men who are chiefly actuated by the motive of self-interest, a low one certainly, but in politics, at least, and in the absence of other issues, the most powerful that exists However much good men may loathe the political principles and practices of the Chandlers, the Logans, the Shepherds and their like, candid observers cannot fail to recognize their mastery of the art of political manipulation beyond any of the body of men in either of the national parties. How widely and successfully they are strengthening their hold on the republican organization, is evident in the recent senatorial election. Again, there is not one of the other republican candidates, so far seriously talked of who would not be likely to prefer Grant as a second choice. Indeed, it is whispered that Grant's friends already have assurances of support from both Blaine and Conkling factions as soon as their favorites are seen to be distanced. Grant's continued and growing popularity at the West, particularly among the small property-holders, the glamour of heroism which makes his name a household word among the negroes of the South, and the only name of political power among them, the confidence reposed in his conserving powers by the business men of the North, the gratitude and personal esteem felt for him by the great mass of strictly party republicans everywhere,—these are elements of strength which should not be overlooked. Nor need anyone be surprised to find the civil-service of the country, with or without pretense of non-interference in politics, yielding its mighty if silent influence in favor of the military candidate. The money-bags, too, which are ready to be opened in the support of his cause are not owned by the Drexel-Childs coterie in Philadelphia alone.

It is not, then, an unwarranted apprehension that by a skillfull combination of these various forces the ex-President may for the third time be presented to the country as the standard bearer of the republican party, the chosen exponent of its boasted moral ideas. If surface indications of the most pronounced character count for anything, such unmistakably is the present drift of the party.

BLACKMAIL.

The Cameron-Oliver case in Washington has revived many stories of similar attempts, in by-gone years, some of which were successful, some failed from want of pluck on the part of the aggressive party and in the rarest of all instances they are brought to trial and ignominiously go to the wall on the merits of the case like the one in question. A case was published a few years ago of a woman who met Zadock Street, then a resident of Ohio and well known to Pittsburghers, who most persistently followed the plot—she claimed to be or was the pretended wife of a shyster lawyer in the city of New York. The sympathies of Mr. Street were worked upon successfully by this artful woman to befriend her in Philadelphia, and to permit her to accompany him to New York. All her ingenuity to entrap the humane Quaker failed, but the pretended husband with other legal assistance followed up the case in hopes either to bring him to compromise or to extort damages through a suit. The persecuted party came out of the contest with an untarnished name, but it required great moral courage and infinite trouble, vexation and a large expenditure of money. But it is unnecessary to go to Washington or to New York for illustrious examples of attempted or even successful black-mailing. Two of our most successful and respected citizens now deceased, are known to have been victims to the amount it is said, of $25,000 each, and others now living have come down in lesser and even equal amounts. There would be less complaints on this score, and the trade would not thrive but for the fact that lawyers practicing at the bar and otherwise respectable, have lent their professional services to these disreputable schemes. The fear of honorable business men and men of high social standing of having their names even mentioned in such a connection, renders them easy victims to a well laid plot, especially when the case is in the hands of a skillful but unscrupulous and determined attorney. The danger of exposure of the latter is very remote, and he prosecutes the nefarious business, holding his head amongst his peers as an honest man. The members of the bar owe it to themselves to purge their ranks of this material which is a disgrace to the profession, and it is with this view that we call attention to this subject. Let the respectable portion of the bar mark any man in their ranks who has ever been smirched with such associations, and the disease will soon be stamped out.

We wish to say in conclusion that the shameless woman, shystering attornies and the whole variety of disgraceful scoundrels who make their disreputable livings by blackmailing any one whom they think they can rob through wholesale lying and unblushing perjury in the courts should be held up to the contempt and scorn of all honest people and wherever possible, punished with such severity that other knaves will be deterred from following their examples, and we thank ex-Senator Cameron in the name of a long suffering public for the manly and philanthropic course he has taken in dealing with the low and disgusting wretches who have tried to enrich themselves from his coffers.—Pittsburg Critic.

The Republican organs raised a great hue and cry a short time ago to the effect that the Democrats, when they came into power in Congress, would bankrupt the Treasury by the payment of Southern war claims. Tuesday, in the House, when General Bragg proposed to abolish the whole business of Southern claims, he was supported by nearly the whole Democratic vote, but the Republicans, with the aid of Border State Democrats, defeated the proposition. We shall be pleased to hear what the organs have to say upon this subject now. The simple truth is that this costly and dishonest system of war claims was created and has been maintained by the Republicans in Congress, to the great discredit of the party, and while the Southern Democrats are not the wisest men in the world, they have had sense enough to make their record in this respect unassailable.—Times.

As walking matches are growing tiresome it is pleasant to know that other forms of public entertainment are springing up in which the powers of men will be tested. The next thing is to be a contest between champion snake men. Mr. Charles Roumfort, who calls himself "the champion snake handler and eater of America," publishes the following card in the New York Sun which may interest some people in this locality:

"I have been waiting some time for a man like Frank A. Conklin to challenge me in anything pertaining to snakes. I can catch more snakes, charm more snakes and eat more snakes (especially rattlers) than any man in this country. I come from a snake family—my parents and grand parents being known for years as the great snake catchers and tamers of Powell's Valley, Dauphin county, Pa. My ancestors were the original French settlers and I inherited all their snake knowledge. My money, my snakes and myself will be ready at any time at John Donor's, opposite Capitol Park, Harrisburg

Mr. Isaac B. Palmer, of Riverside, Conn, also publishes a card in the Sun, in which he says: "I challenge Frank A. Conklin to eat snakes, I to dress my own snakes—rattle snake, adder or any other kind of snake. Challenge to remain open ten days, for from $100 to $5000."

Bewitching Work.—There is a fascination in renewing all the ribbons, stockings, shawls and dresses in the house by the use of Leamon's Dyes made by Wells, Richardson & Co., Burlington, Vt. The colors are superb. Druggists have them.

The election of the Republican candidate for mayor of Cincinnati has been claimed as a great party victory and as an emphatic approval of the bloody shirt programme in Congress. Nothing could be more absurd. The following letter of Mr. Jacobs, the republican candidate for mayor, to the Volksfreund, two days before the election defines the issue on which the contest was decided:

"In your to-day's issue you state that in the meeting of Moralists at Hopkins that there was a letter read which is purported to be written by me, in which I obligated myself to execute the Sunday law strictly according to letter. This assertion is an untruth. * * I will never assist to prevent any law-abiding citizens from enjoying their usual pleasures either on week days or Sundays. I am no church visitor and no temperance man, and would not dictate to order loving citizens to stay away from properly managed amusements just as little as I would wish to dictate to them that they must not go to church: nor would I allow any one else to dictate to me that I must drink water in place of wine or beer.

Jacobs was elected mayor over the democratic candidate by a majority of 447 votes on the great question of free beer on Sunday. If this was was a grand republican victory it is well enough to understand the character of the platform upon which the victory was won.—Patriot.

MOSBY.

This noted guerilla never can be reconciled to the rank and file of the Union Army. It is not because he was a soldier on the other side, but because he indulged in a species of warfare unknown to civilized nations. His notoriety was not gained by open and manly warfare, but by midnight marauding, by attacks on weak and inoffensive citizens, and by the robbery, imprisonment and killing of non combatants. Whether from similarity of tastes or other reasons we know not, but certain it is that Grant and he became bosom friends and boon companions. On his recommendation, the daughter of Jackson—the man who shot Ellsworth for hauling down the rebel flag at Alexandria, was appointed to a fine position at Washington, whilst the wives and daughters of thousands of Union soldiers were in destitution. But what surprises us, is the following from the Press, which has been a thick and thin organ of the Grant and Hayes' Administrations:

"Colonel Mosby brings the manners of the saddle in the salons of the diplomats, and has won more conspicuousness than distinction. He is evidently better fitted for duty as a guerilla than for official station. The only regret we could have at his recall is that he would be let loose further to torment the present, to say nothing of the next Republican Administration. And to what greater affliction could they be subjected?"

Petrifaction.

Most of our readers will remember Benjamin Singerly, Esq., formerly proprietor of the Daily State Journal and state printer for a term of years, who died suddenly after traveling from Philadelphia to Pittsburg one very hot day about two years ago. Mr. Singerly was a very heavy man weighing from 350 to 400 pounds. He was interred at Pittsburg. A few weeks ago the relatives of Mr. S. made preparations to have him resurrected and taken to Philadelphia where his parents and other relatives are buried. When the hands to whom the work of raising the body was entrusted, dug down to the top of the casket, they were surprised to find that no offensive odor prevailed—a circumstance that makes it unpleasant at any time to take up dead people in order to carry them from one point to another. The coffin was opened, but the attempt to remove the rough box from it was ineffectual, on account of its extraordinary weight. This created considerable surprise, and it was at last suggested to open the casket. An undertaker was entrusted with the job and when the lid was removed the face and body were found to have undergone petrifaction—had assumed the color of yellow marble, and the entire face and form seemed as one mass of marble chissled from a block—not one of the features or lineaments were out of place or unnatural in the slightest degree. The body was raised from the grave by means of a block and fall and was found to weigh (when weighed for transportation to Philadelphia) nine hundred and eighty pounds!

These facts were related to a Patriot reporter five days ago from what he thought at that time to be a reliable source, but seeing no mention made of the case in the Pittsburg journals, he awaited further developments. The same story from a strictly trustworthy party, was again reported and we therefore feel justified in giving them publicity.

Dr. Isaac Hays, the oldest editor in the United States, died in Philadelphia last Saturday. He had been on an editoral staff fifty two years.

Rebecca Carman of Benton has just returned from the city with a large assortment of Millinery Notions cheaper than ever, to which she invites the public.

Two persons were baptized by immersion in the Fishing creek near the Scott town bridge on Sunday afternoon last, by Rev. J. P. Tustin.

The adjourned Court ordered for this afternoon will not be held, the particular case for which it was appointed having been otherwise disposed of.

The examination of the Senior Class at the Normal School will begin on Wednesday, June 18th. The Committee will be announced hereafter.

As the item in the Catawissa Item about our soldiers Convention meeting in last March might mislead some of our soldier friends, we repeat, that the call is for Saturday, May 26th, at Correll's Hall.

Beaver township is the first to comply this year with the law, requiring the publication of annual statements. All others should follow their good example, and save the penalty for non-compliance.

Administrators and Executors who advertise their notices in the COLUMBIAN, and pay for them when ordered will be presented with a neatly bound Receipt book for the estate, without any charge. tf.

The widow of the late Captain W. A. Tubbs, and mother of the editor of the Shickshinny Echo, we are pleased to learn, is about getting a pension that will amount to the handsome sum of over $10 000—Item.

The Legislature adjourned on Thursday of last week until Tuesday morning, Friday being a legal holiday. We were pleased to receive calls from both members, Vanderslice and Knittle, on Monday.

NO WHITE BUTTER.—People will not in these days, buy white butter, and dairymen of good judgment use the Perfected Butter Color of Wells, Richardson & Co., Burlington, Vt. It does not freeze in winter or mould in summer and is always ready for instant use.

Catawissa has a sensation. It seems that Messrs. Abbott, Fortner, and Jacob Rhawn were on a still hunt in the neighborhood of Centralia, and managed to secure a full grown cat alive, which was brought over the mountains to Catawissa. A broken tire was the only accident on the route.

A deer bounded upon the track as a Catawissa train was passing near Watsontown a few days ago. It kept ahead of the engine for a long distance and then jumped to the side, running with the train nearly to Dewart. Several revolver shots were fired from the train. The deer darted into the woods near Dewart and was found there with a bullet-hole in his neck the next morning.

The illustrated Lecture of Prof. W. J. Marshall on Thursday evening of last week, entitled "The Yellowstone National Park," was one of the most interesting entertainments that we have had the pleasure of attending for a long time. The lecture was very instructive and contained many facts which are known by but few, and ought to be known by everybody. The views were produced by a calcium light, and clearly illustrated the wonders of the region where they were taken. We shall be happy to see Prof. Marshall here again.

At the adjourned Court last Monday a large number of motions were made, and cases argued. In the case of Mary McAlarney vs S. P. Wolverton, in equity, the Court filed an opinion holding that the deed under which the defendant holds, instead of being an absolute deed is in fact a mortgage. That the plaintiff has the right of redemption upon payment of the mortgage money, after applying the rents and profits received by the mortgages. Samuel Knorr, Esq., was appointed Master to state the account between the parties.

The genial countenance of A. E. Miller, formerly a Clerk at the Exchange Hotel, beamed upon us this week. For some time past he has been stationed at Williamsport, and is now visiting friends in Luzerne. He seems to be as cherry and chirpy as ever.

Woman's Words, a journal devoted to the interests of women, will hereafter be published exclusively by Mrs. Juan Lewis, that lady having purchased Mrs. Spencer's interest in the paper and become sole proprietor.—Exchange.

What is the use of such a book? Every man is familar with "Woman's Words," and daily has them recited to him in the most eloquent and vigorous manner.

LUBY DISCHARGED

Peter Luby, who has been undergoing a two years term of imprisonment upon conviction of larceny, was discharged from the jail at Pottsville a few days ago. He resides at Germantown in Conyngham township. It was strongly urged by his friends before the Board of Pardons that he was innocent of the crime charged against him.

We had the pleasure last week of visiting the splendid farm of E. H. Little Esq., located beyond Light Street. He has spent a large amount of money in making it a model farm, and we have no doubt he will succeed. His stock of cattle is the finest in the county. We understand he proposes to give the beet sugar plant a trial this season. We hope he will make its production a success.

On Wednesday last we had the pleasure of witnessing the operation of Guerrants Electro-Engraving machine at the Exchange Hotel, under the management of M. B. Allebach of Danville. We understand he is agent in this section. Heretofore all engraving has been done by hand, but by means of this machine the most delicate engraving can be done on gold, iron, stone, glass &c., with but little manual labor by the operator.

THE STERLING BOOK COVER.—We have purchased the right to use these covers in this county, and have on hand an assortment of sizes. They make the neatest and most convenient form for doing up note heads, letter heads, bill heads, notes, checks, &c., and a cover will be given away with every order o 1000. Try it once and you will not do without it. It is the best thing of the kind ever invented. Call and examine. tf.

MARINE DISASTER.

A loaded canal boat belonging to the Susquehanna Coal Co., was carried over the Nanticoke dam on Friday afternoon. It was in tow of the steam tug when it became unmanageable and the tug cut loose and saved itself. The boat passed over the dam diagonally and was not much injured. Two men, named Fox and Carter were upon it when it passed over. It will be unloaded and floated to Northumberland and put into the canal. There were two boats attached to the tug, one of which was manned in a masterly manner by young Ruch of Berwick, who managed to land his boat a short distance above the dam.—Record of the Times.

The annual meeting of St. Paul's Episcopal church for the election of Vestry men was held on Monday evening after service. Geo. E. Elwell was elected chairman and C. C. Marr Secretary. B. P. Vannatta and E. B. Clark were appointed Tellers and a vote was taken resulting in the election of the following as Vestrymen: B. F. Hartman, E. R. Drinker, C. C. Marr, J. W. Hendershott, C. F. Knapp, Geo. E. Elwell and Eli Barton.

B. F. Hartman made his report as Treasurer of the Parish, and a vote of thanks was tendered him for his efficient services during the past year. The Rector proposed a plan for keeping down the interest of the church debt by the use of boxes to be distributed to each family, a penny a day to be placed in them during the year. The result will be over $300

EASTER SERVICES.

At St. Paul's Episcopal church the services on Easter day were of the usual beautiful and interesting character. An early service was held at six o'clock which was largely attended. The service consisted of morning prayer up to the Litany. At half past ten o'clock the remainder of the morning services was read, with sermon, and Holy Communion. The church was beautifully decorated with flowers, and the sentence "Christ the Lord has risen indeed" was stretched across the front of the chancel. An exquisite floral mound surmounted the baptismal font, and hanging baskets were suspended in the arches of the ceiling. The music at these two services was excellent, under the direction of Prof. Hoffman.

In the evening the Sunday school held their Easter celebration, and presented their offerings.

The Easter Services at the Lutheran Church on Sunday last were unusually interesting. The church was beautifully decorated with flowers and newly carpeted with Brussels Carpet. Forty-seven persons were received into the Church by Confirmation. An appropriate and ably delivered sermon was given by Rev. H. Ziegler, D. D. About two hundred and forty persons took part in the Communion Services. During the Winter seventy-four additions have been made to the membership of this Church

ITEMS FROM CATAWISSA.

The new barn of W. J. Kester is nearly completed.

Mr. F. L. Shuman is erecting a new barn near the railroad.

Mr. Lewis Hayhurst the new assessor has commenced his friendly visits.

Last Friday being a legal holiday the employees of the P. & R. railroad were idle.

Mr. C. F. Harder is erecting a frame dwelling house on 3rd street. Mr. H. is a live business man.

It is about time Supervisor Sharpless calls together his favorite few and removes the ashes and other rubbish from the streets.

The Cornet Band are making arrangements to purchase uniforms. We hope they may succeed. They are deserving of help.

A Gospel Temperance meeting was held in the Lutheran church Friday evening. Considerable interest is being manifested in these meetings.

Mr. Thomas Cherrington has moved to town from Franklin township. He intends opening a gun smith shop. Mr. C. is a first-class mechanic and undoubtedly will meet with success.

The services at the Episcopal church last Sunday were very interesting. The church was very tastefully decorated with ferns, and the Rector the Rev. C. F. Fessenden delivered an excellent sermon, appropriate to the occasion.

The excursion to Philadelphia on Thursday of last week on the P. & R. Railroad was a failure. Comparatively few taking advantage of the reduced rates of fare. The fact of the excursion being so late in the week was undoubtedly the cause of it. W.—

ORANGEVILLE LETTER.

April 16th 1879.

MR. EDITOR:—Seeing that you have no correspondent in our place I will send you a few items of news. We have as you know a thriving village. We have heretofore had very good stores but a new one has lately been added to the number. It is owned by A. B. Stewart. Mr Stewart has an excellent stock of goods, and his store is finished in good style. It bids fair to be very prosperous.

Mr. Stewart has also lately built a fine dwelling house on the lot next his store. It is rented by Mrs. Agnes Melick of Rhorsburg and she moved in last week.

Last week on Tuesday occurred the funeral of Mrs. Achenbach, wife of Samuel Achenbach of this place. She was a woman respected and loved by all the neighborhood and her loss will be felt by many outside of her immediate family circle.

The Academy opened on Monday, the 14th, with the largest number of pupils ever present on the first day of the term. Luzerne, Monroe and Montour counties are well represented.

For several mornings back we have been aroused from our peaceful slumber, by the sound of a loud shrill whistle, echoing and re-echoing in the still morning air. We have made inquiries as to the meaning of this, and find that a new steam whistle has been attached to the foundry on Mill Street.

Rev. Mr. Clees, who succeeds Mr. Mendenhall in charge of the Methodist Church of this place has moved into the Parsonage, and we have no doubt but what he will soon make many friends here.

We are told that Harry Low is confined to the house by sickness. Col. Kline on Saturday last had two very severe epileptic fits.

"Waiting for something to turn up," I remain yours truly. WILKENS MICAWBER.

A WORD TO DOUBTERS.

There is a good old English maxim that teaches us to "believe every man honest until we know him to be a villian." American custom seems to have reversed this law and appears to make every man a villian until he has proved himself an honest man. As with people so with things. Every article placed in our markets can lay claim to popular favor upon intrinsic merit and value alone. Continued popularity, therefore, is proof positive of intrinsic excellence. Dr. Pierce's Family Remedies are far more popular to day than ever before. The people have tested them and know them to be genuine remedies for the disease they are recommended to cure. The Golden Medical Discovery and Purgative Pellets are the best alterative, tonic and cathartic remedies that can be used in chronic diseases of the stomach and liver. The world wide popularity of the Favorite Prescription, as a never failing remedy for Female Diseases, would have alone secured to its discoverer the fame he has so richly won. Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy; of which Dr. Pierce is also proprietor, is recommended by those who have tested its virtues as a safe and reliable remedy for catarrh in its worst form.

A HANDSOME INCOME FOR AN ENERGETIC LADY OR GENTLEMAN.

The Ohio Scale Works of Cincinnati have just patented and are now introducing to the public a Handsomely finished Family Scale, an article that has always been needed in every household, and in a communication addressed to the publishers of this paper the proprietors ask us to refer them to some reliable party, to introduce it for them to the people of this County. It is seldom that a new article steps so suddenly into universal favor. Housekeepers are loud in its praise, it is always ready, there are no weights to get lost or to be hunted up, is reliable, and will not get out of order. The description of them is a handsome base surrounded by a column in which works a spiral spring so scientifically adjusted as to weigh anything up to twelve pounds with perfect accuracy, on the top of the column is the platform on which the articles to be weighed are placed, and they have an adjustable indicator so that you can take the tare of any vessel you may use in weighing, giving you the exact net weight. Housekeepers at once see their value in weighing fruits, sugars and other ingredients used in preserving, cooking, etc., or in testing the weights of purchases from others.

The Scales are made of Brass, are highly polished and are finished in a skillful manner. They are very attractive and take the eye of every one who sees them.

It seems to us that nearly every family in this county will want one, and is certainly a rare opportunity for some smart and energetic party to pick up quite a nice little income during the next few months. The Company has agents in other counties who are easily making from $2 00 to $6 00 per day selling them, and we would recommend parties in need of employment to drop the OHIO SCALE WORKS, No. 125 and 127 Central Avenue, Cincinnati, O. a Postal Card, and all information etc. will be cheerfully given them by mentioning our paper. April 11-2 w

It is Dr. Boschee's famous German prescription, and is prepared with the greatest care, and no fear need be entertained in administering it to the youngest child, as per directions. The sale of this medicine is unprecedented. Since first introduced there has been a constant increasing demand and without a single report of a failure to do its work in any case. THE WILLIAM BURGESS CASE.

We have refrained from adverting to current rumors about the alleged defalcation of Mr. Burgess, because injustice might be done him; but so much has been published about it and more said, that the writer feels it a duty to his old teacher to give a fair version of the matter. Mr. Burgess, formerly Principal of the Millville Academy and Superintendent of the Common Schools of this county,—a member of the Society of Friends—was appointed Agent of the Pawnee tribe of Indians in Nebraska, in 1872. The "peace policy" having been changed, he was removed in 1877. His sureties, some twenty in number, are held in the sum of $40,000. Last March they received from the Treasury Department the following notice, which also gives the amount unsettled, and the names of the sureties:

> As surety on the bond of William Burgess, Indian Agent, dated December 24th, 1872 (Pawnee) you are hereby advised that there is an outstanding balance against him of $111,666 12 arising from suspensions, &c, in the settlement of his accounts, February 27th, 1878, since which time he has failed to furnish the required explanations. Before taking legal action on the case, the sureties will be afforded an opportunity to effect a settlement, and they are requested to attend to the same in six months. Your co-sureties are Jos. E. Eves, Richard F. Whitmoye, Benj. Battin, Francis P. Eves, Parvin Eves, Ellis Eves, John R. Eves A. P. Young, Joseph W. Eves, A. P. Heller, Chandler Eves, Reuben Wilson, Joseph E Sands, Joseph Eves, Samuel B. Kisner, Elisha Hayman, Chas. W. Eves, Michael Whitmoyer, and Elisha R. Ikeler and John Hicks, all of Millville, Pa.

We are assured that there has been no defalcation on the part of Mr. Burgess. He and his clerks now are busily engaged in duplicating his vouchers so as to conform to the latest instructions of the latest official. What has led to this, has been contradictory instructions from the shifting heads of departments, and the usual red-tapeism. The same difficulty has been experienced by all officials in making settlements at Washington. The writer remembers that he was charged with a section of artillery in the Treasury Department, which was captured, with himself and remaining men, at Bull Run. The only way he could settle his account was after re capturing the same guns at Bristow Station, and four others, but no credit was ever allowed for the other four. B.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

Washington, D. C., April 15, 1879.

IN THE SPRING A WOMAN'S FANCY GENTLY TURNS TO SHOPPING—TREASURY GIRLS—MRS. OLIVER IN THE LECTURE FIELD—PICTORIAL LIES—THE ARMY BILL—WHAT WILL HE DO WITH IT—PROSPECTS OF A LONG SESSION—KELLEY'S BILL—THE CONVENTION OF THE ACADEMY OF SCIENCES.

The Lenten season, always vigorously observed in Washington, is just over, and the gay and fashionable are emerging from their temporary seclusion, as beautiful, almost as fresh, and far more interesting than the lilies of the field. That text of Scripture about the comparative inferiority of Solomon's ward-robe would lose its point, if the comparison were now made to the disparagement of a modern fashionable young ladies' toilet, for her hat may be covered with artificial lilies of the fields far more durable, and more like a lily than the lily itself. While the tints of the ocean and hues of the sky, in color though varied, in beauty may vie, they can't come up to the dress which last night she wore, bought for a mere trifle at a 7th street store. I am writing now about the Treasury girl, not any particular Treasury girl, but the general girl who works for the government in marble halls, counting notes, postage stamps, writing forms, etc., etc. Why they should be called girls I cannot explain, because many of them are no longer young. Since the recent unpleasantness between Mrs. Oliver and her aged suitor, men are in the habit of looking at the Treasury girls with a timorous apprehension that is quite unique, as if each one of them might be a dangerous and explosive crypotogam. Mrs. Oliver, now thoroughly advertised, has taken to the lecture field to swell the tide of vile and vapid oratorial drivel. Let it swell the sooner it slops over in all inundating disgust the better. The pictorial journals are much to blame for the notoriety given to uninteresting vulgar men and women. The so called "Mrs. Oliver" is homely, common, and in every way unattractive; but the Police Gazette, Frank Leslie's, Harper's Weekly and papers of a like character have idealized and dignified her face, and form, and habit, until ex-Senator Cameron himself would not know her. It is a pity that subscribers do not know how utterly worthless as representations, the portraits and indeed nearly all pictures in these journals are. They glorify pimps, prostitutes, while they malignantly caricature distinguished men. Their influence is base, mendacious and corrupting far beyond that of many publications, the circulation of which is prohibited by penal statutes.

The arena of debate has been transferred from the House to the Senate, but it is still on the army bill, and it is said it will continue for three weeks. It will certainly continue as long as the Republican Senators care to make speeches. There is no patent process to stop debate in the Senate. More than one such contest has ended only through utter exhaustion not only of the subject but of the debators. There seems at present to be but little real interest in the debate. The public mind has long since been made up on the merits of the question. The press has presented the subject in every possible light, and now the only thing that remains unanswered and interesting is the great Bulwerian question. "What will he do with it?" Will he sign it or veto it? and if he shall veto it, what will they do with it? There is as yet no new light on these questions, and their importance connected with the fact that they will not be answered for at least a month makes the debates very tedious. There is a very strong determination on the part of some members of Congress to introduce legislation outside of that for which the special session was called. This is of course very popular in the District. General legislation will prolong the session, and stay the hegira which usually makes Washington a "deserted village" after the middle of June. Many new bills have been introduced into the Senate, and a smaller number into the House. Representative Kelley, of Pennsylvania, has prepared a bill to remedy the inconveniences and losses to workmen and retail dealers of the accumulation in their hands of certain small coins. It proposes to require the Treasury and sub-treasuries to redeem with legal-tender money the subsidiary silver coins whenever presented in sums of $5 or multiples thereof, and also provides that the further coinage of trade dollars be stopped and that they shall for twelve months be receivable at par for customs or any other obligations due the United States, and that when so received they shall be recoined into silver dollars of 412½ grains.

The National Academy of Sciences will hold the first of a series of sessions in this city to-day. A large number of essays on abtruse scientific subjects will be read by distinguished specialists. The meetings will be open to the public and the hoi polloi will have an opportunity to hear papers read upon "The loss of the Mississippi and Æolian Hypothesis"—"The paleozoic cockroaches"—"The relation of Neuralgic pains to storms and the earth's magnetism"—And, "On Ghosts in defraction spectra." Prof. O. C. Marsh of New Haven, vice-president of the Academy will preside, the presidency being vacant by the death of the late Professor Henry. C. A. S.

CONSUMPTION CURED.

An old physician, retired from practice, having had placed in his hands by an East India missionary the formula of a simple vegetable remedy, for the speedy and permanent cure for consumption, bronchitis catarrh, asthma, and all throat and lung affections, also a positive and radical cure for nervous complaints, after having tested its wonderful curative powers in thousands of cases, has felt it his duty to make it known to his suffering fellows. Actuated by this motive, and a desire to relieve human suffering, I will send, free of charge, to all who desire, this recipe, with full directions for preparing and using, in German, French or English. Sent by mail by addressing with stamp naming this paper. W. W. Sherar, 149 Powers' Block, Rochester, New York.

IN THE WHOLE HISTORY OF MEDICINE.

No preparation has ever performed such marvellous cures, or maintained so wide a reputation, as Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, which is recognized as the world's remedy for all diseases of the throat and lungs. Its long continued series of wonderful cures in all climates has made it universally known as a safe and reliable agent to employ. Against ordinary colds, which are the forerunners of more serious disorders, it acts speedily and surely, always relieving suffering, and often saving life. The protection it affords, by its timely use in the throat and lung disorders of children, make it an invaluable remedy to be kept always on hand in every home. No person can afford to be without it, and those who have once used it never will. From their knowledge of its composition and effects, Physicians use the Cherry Pectoral extensively in their practice, and Clergymen recommend it. It is absolutely certain in its remedial effects, and will always cure where cures are possible.

Miscellaneous.

USEFUL TO KNOW.

PIN WORMS.—To remove pin worms in the face, place over the black spot the hollow end of a watch key, and press firmly. This forces the foreign substance out, so that it may be brushed off, and is a cure.

A GOOD SALVE for burns, bruises, etc., can be made by taking very strong lime water and lard; boil some time; pour off water; add more lime water; boil again till very strong of lime; some linseed oil would be a good addition to it.

CHANGE OF HAIR.—The British Royal Society has made researches extending over a period of more than two hundred years, and failed to discover a single case of sudden change in the color of the human hair. This spoils whole pages of poems, novels and newspaper items.

CAMPHOR BALLS.—Clarify a pound of mutton suet and add to it three pounds of spermaceti, two of white wax and one of gum camphor cut into very small pieces. Melt these together with gentle heat, and stir until the camphor is dissolved; then pour it into moulds. Good for rough hands.

FRIED OYSTERS.—Have ready a skillet of boiling lard; dip your oysters, one at a time, in beaten yolk of egg; then in grated bread crumbs; lastly in sifted meal, and then drop into the lard. Turn and allow them to become only slightly browned. Drain upon a sieve and send to table hot.

LOBSTER BISQUE.—Take a good sized lobster, chop fine, put on the fire with a little water; have ready a quart of milk, one-fourth pound of butter, rubbed together with a large tablespoonful of flour, a little salt, mace or parsley; add to the lobster and boil about five minutes; strain before sending to the table.

POTTED HERRING.—Scrape and wash a dozen fish, lay them in salt for three hours; take an earthen jar, season with a teaspoonful of salt, 20 whole peppers, 10 cloves, 2 bits of mace and half a teaspoonful of ground ginger; put the fish in layers, adding the salt and spices on each layer; pack down tightly, then fill the jar with three-quarters vinegar and one quarter water, bake gently for five hours; eat cold.

TURBOT.—Take a large white fish, steam till done; take all the bones out, and sprinkle with salt and pepper; take a quart of milk, quarter pound of flour, a bunch of parsley and three large slices of onion; put over the fire and stir till it comes to a thick cream; take off, add two eggs, quarter pound of butter; strain through a sieve; put in a baking dish a layer of fish and a layer of the sauce alternately until the dish is full, the sauce being on top, then sprinkle with bread crumbs; bake half an hour in a moderate oven.

BAKED COD OR HADDOCK.—Take a cod or haddock of five or six pounds; keep the head on the fish; do not have it opened too deep; make a farcie or stuffing of half pound of bread crumbs, a teaspoonful of very fine divided parsley, a teaspoonful of salt, a saltspoonful of ground pepper, a half teaspoonful of dried, mixed thyme and marjoram; take two eggs, beat them all together, add a teaspoonful of butter, mix all thoroughly and fill in the fish with it; if necessary tie the fish up with a string; bake slowly in a pan, larding with a little butter from time to time; about an hour and a half will cook the fish.

TO KEEP MILK FROM TURNING.—In Ezebirge, in Saxony, where the cold water system is carried out in large dairies, an apparently effectual plan has been hit upon for preventing their milk 'turning' suddenly in tempestuous weather. A thin iron-wire chain is passed through the milk pans, the ends of which are kept in cold water. Dr. Fleischman, of Baden, testifies to the practicability of this method, for he observes, authorities on this subject maintain that milk is less sensitive to the electricity of the air than to the temperature that surrounds it more immediately. The fact that milk kept in enameled or tin vessels is less liable to turn sour in hot weather speaks well for this new theory.

QUENELLES OF FISH.—Take three pounds of white-fish or pickerel, and boil, cooking a trifle less than for serving as boiled fish. Divide the fish, picking out bones; rub the fish through a sieve; pound the fish in a mortar with quarter of a pound of butter, an equal quantity of bread crumbs; add a half teaspoonful of pepper, and one-third of a grated nutmeg, take three eggs, beat all well together, and mix with the fish; add a spoonful of cream and the juice of a lemon; spread flour on a board, and roll out the material, adding sufficient flour to thicken it; when smooth, divide the paste into pieces about 2½ inches long by 2 inches wide; roll these into cigar-like shapes, but not too pointed; fry in very hot butter until a light brown. This dish makes a handsome entree, and may be used with a centre of mushrooms or truffles.

LOSS OF SLEEP.—It is wonderful how much may be done to protract existence by the habitual restorative of sound sleep. Late hours, under mental strain are, of course, incompatible with this solacement. On this topic Dr. Richardson says it has been painful to him to trace the beginnings of pulmonary consumption to late hours, 'at unhealthy balls and evening parties,' by which rest is broken and encroachments made on the constitution. But he adds, 'If in middle age the habit of taking deficient and irregular sleep be still maintained, every source of depressions, every latent form of disease, is quickened and intensified. The sleepless exhaustion allies itself with all the other processes of exhaustion, or kills imperceptibly, by a rapid introduction of premature dissolution.' There, at once, is an explanation why many people die earlier than they ought to do. They violate the principle of taking a regular night's rest. If they sleep it is disturbed. They dream all sorts of nonsense.

WE SHOULD DIET MORE ON FRUITS AND VEGETABLES.—All trustworthy hygienists and medical authorities are unanimous in recommending fruits and vegetables as the best and most appropriate food for this season, and the eating of much meat, rich gravies, etc., as carefully to be abstained from. And yet there is not one person in ten who carefully and intelligently follows this advice. Many a person who is now nervous and shaky and out of sorts would have strength and elasticity of spirits and improved health if less meats and much more fruits were eaten. Depend on it, a large proportion of the physical ills of life come from too much eating. There is but little danger of not eating enough. The trouble with nine-tenths of ailing and chronically-complaining people is injudicious and intemperate eating. Leave off eating so much meat and greasy compounds and rich pastry, and try a simple diet for a time, and, our word for it, you will soon experience a great and marvelous change come over the spirit of your dreams.

SCENES AT PIKE'S PEAK.

Some curious natural phenomena are witnessed from the summit of Pike's Peak. Electric storms are so remarkable there that those who have witnessed them are eloquent as to their splendor. Little thunder accompanies them, but the whole mountain seems to be on fire, and the top one sheet of flame. Electricity comes out of every rock, and darts here and there with indescribable radiance. An observer says that it played around him continuously; shot down his back, glanced out at his feet, and so completely filled him that he became charged like a Leyden jar. He could not retain his foothold; he bounded and rebounded from the rocks after the manner of an india rubber ball; he felt as though a powerful battery were throbbing and thrilling through his frame, and, fearing consequences, he hurried into the signal station. The signal officers stationed at the Peak see some wonderful sights, and if they had as much imagination and rhetoric as they have patience and power of observation they could furnish some very vivid descriptions of what they witness. Several men of science who have watched electric storms from the top of the mountain, think the phenomena the grandest and most imposing, and that they can hardly be surpassed anywhere. The Peak commands a view of 100 miles radius, a wild mountainous region, containing many lakes, and the sources of four great rivers—the Platte, Arkansas, Rio Grande, and Colorado of California.

A GARMENT OF GLASS.

The San Francisco Chronicle says: 'In the large basement room of the residence of S. Isaacs, No. 1,434 Mission street, is now being woven the most wonderful fabric of which the voluminous history of unique feminine apparel furnished any account. It is the material, as flexible as the finest silk and as durable as Blue Jean Williams' favorite stuff for trousers, for a lady's dress, and it is being woven by an artist in glass work, Professor Theodore Greuier, out of innumerable colored strands of glass first spun by himself. Compared with the completed garment, the mythical glass slipper of the fabulous Cinderella will sink into vulgar insignificance. The spinning is all done, and occupied many weeks, and is of very fine finish. The weaving is all done on an old-fashioned hand loom, the warp being nineteen feet long and the wool four feet, so that the material will cut to splendid advantage. Only about ten inches a day can be woven. It is of that now extremely fashionable loose and careless admixture of colors known as the Oriental. When the dress is finished, it is to be worn by a young wax lady with a glass head, blown expressly for the occasion by the professor, and profusely ornamented with blonde glass curls. The dress is to be made with panier skirt, loop sleeves and square neck. It is to be beautified with box pleating, and bound in blue. When the dress and the wearer are fully constructed they will be put on exhibition. At the coronation of Queen Victoria she wore a dress the wool of which was spun glass, but the warp of silk. This was then thought to be the greatest feat which could ever be accomplished in the glass business.'

It is often said that the medical profession in the United States is overcrowded. Over eighty medical colleges send forth every year more than one thousand new graduates to be supported by suffering humanity. The number of doctors is increasing far beyond the increase of population. In 1810 there were in the whole country 600 medical students, or one to 12,000 people; whereas, in 1877, there were 9,640 students, or one to 4,700 inhabitants. No country has such an abundance of doctors, for in no country can the medical diploma or license be obtained so easily as in our republic. As a result of this we have one doctor to every 600 people; whereas our neighbor, Canada, has one doctor to 1,200 people; Great Britain, one to 1,672; France, one to 1,814; Belgium, one to 2,048; Austria, one to 2,500; Germany, one to 3,000; Italy, one to 3,500; Norway, one to 3,480; Russia, one to 50,000. The physicians of this country, under the double pressure of hard times and professional competition, have begun to think that the time has come to adopt measures of protection. One proposition, which will not be adopted, is to abolish colleges as private corporations, and put medical education under the control of the States; that is, to establish State colleges with salaried professors, who shall not depend upon the students for their income, and so will not be tempted to grant diplomas to the largest possible number of graduates.

In the north of Holland the farms are not over a foot above the level of the sea, and some are lower. The land is loose, spongy muck, and is very rich. It is subdivided into small parcels by canals. There are thousands of windmills which are used to pump water all the time. The dwellings are as neat as they possibly can be. They are built in small villages, clustered closely together. The roads are all paved, and not a particle of dust is ever seen. They measure distance by the hour, saying that from place to place it is ten hours' walk, four hours by boat, or two hours by rail. The houses are built as nicely as any in our cities, about fifty feet square, with about eight feet between the joists upon the first floor; all above is used for storing hay. On the side are the stables for the cattle, and they are models of neatness. The floors are all paved with stone or brick. In these stables where the cattle are they make butter, cheese, do the washing, ironing and baking and the general household work. It is not an uncommon thing to see hundreds of cheeses there; they weigh about four pounds each. The bedding is always clean, and lasts a good while. When the cattle are put into the stable they are put there for the season, and tied with a rope to the corner of the stall. The air there is always chilly, and the cows are blanketed in summer, and of course are warm in their stalls in winter, for fires are quite generally kept burning in two stoves through the coldest of the season. The calves do not need to be covered in the summer, because nature has provided a very thick coating of hair for them, and in winter they are sheared.

TESTIMONIALS:

PROLAPSUS UTERI (Falling of the Womb.) A Wonderful Cure.—Nine years my wife suffered with this terrible complaint. She was attended by doctor after doctor, went to the different hospitals where females are treated; tried them all; wore bandages and pessaries with only temporary relief. Her life was miserable. We applied Dr. Giles' Liniment. Her relief was immediate. She is now well.

ANTI-FAT

ALLAN'S ANTI-FAT is the great remedy for Corpulency. It is purely vegetable and perfectly harmless. It acts on the food in the stomach, preventing its conversion into fat. Taken according to directions, it will reduce a fat person from 2 to 5 pounds a week.

In placing this remedy before the public as a positive cure for obesity, we do so knowing its ability to cure, as attested by hundreds of testimonials, of which the following from a lady in Columbus, Ohio, is a sample: "Gentlemen:—Your Anti-Fat was duly received. I took it according to directions and it reduced me five pounds. I was so elated over the result that I immediately sent to ACKERMAN'S drug-store for the second bottle." Another, a physician, writing for a patient from Providence, R. I., says, "Four bottles have reduced her weight from [illegible] pounds to [illegible] pounds, and there is a general improvement in health." A gentleman writing from Boston, says: "Without special change or attention to diet, two bottles of Allan's Anti-Fat reduced me four and one-quarter pounds." The well-known Wholesale Druggists, SMITH, DOOLITTLE & SMITH, of Boston, Mass., write as follows: "Allan's Anti-Fat has reduced a lady in our city seven pounds in three weeks." A gentleman in St. Louis writes: "Allan's Anti-Fat reduced me twelve pounds in three weeks, and altogether I have lost twenty-five pounds since commencing its use." Messrs. POWELL & PLIMPTON, Wholesale Druggists, of Buffalo, N. Y., write: "TO THE PROPRIETORS OF ALLAN'S ANTI-FAT: Gentlemen,—The following report is from the lady who used Allan's Anti-Fat. "It (the Anti-Fat) had the desired effect, reducing the fat from two to five pounds a week until I had lost twenty-five pounds. I hope never to regain what I have lost." Anti-Fat is an unexcelled blood-purifier. It promotes digestion, curing dyspepsia, and is also a potent remedy for rheumatism. Sold by druggists. Pamphlet on Obesity sent on receipt of stamp.

WOMAN

By an immense practice at the World's Dispensary and Invalids' Hotel, having treated many thousand cases of those diseases peculiar to woman, I have been enabled to perfect a most potent and positive remedy for these diseases.

To designate this natural specific, I have named it

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription

The term, however, is but a feeble expression of my high appreciation of its value, based upon personal observation. I have, while witnessing its positive results in the special diseases incident to the organism of woman, singled it out as the climax or crowning gem of my medical career. On its merits, as a positive, safe, and effectual remedy for this class of diseases, and one that will, at all times and under all circumstances, act kindly, I am willing to stake my reputation as a physician; and so confident am I that it will not disappoint the most sanguine expectations of a single invalid lady who uses it for any of the ailments for which I recommend it, that I offer and sell it under A POSITIVE GUARANTEE. (For conditions, see pamphlet wrapping bottle.)

The following are among those diseases in which my Favorite Prescription has worked cures, as if by magic, and with a certainty never before attained by any medicine: Leucorrhea, Excessive Flowing, Painful Monthly Periods, Suppressions when from unnatural causes, Irregularities, Weak Back, Prolapsus, or Falling of the Uterus, Anteversion and Retroversion, Bearing-down Sensations, Internal Heat, Nervous Depression, Debility, Despondency, Threatened Miscarriage, Chronic Congestion, Inflammation and Ulceration of the Uterus, Impotency, Barrenness, or Sterility, and Female Weakness. I do not extol this medicine as a "cure-all," but it admirably fulfills a singleness of purpose, being a most perfect specific in all chronic diseases of the sexual system of woman. It will not disappoint, nor will it do harm, in any state or condition.

Those who desire further information on these subjects can obtain it in THE PEOPLE'S COMMON SENSE MEDICAL ADVISER, a book of over 900 pages, sent, post-paid, on receipt of $1.50. It treats minutely of those diseases peculiar to Females, and gives much valuable advice in regard to the management of those affections.

Favorite Prescription sold by Druggists.
